What is in the Central New York Forward Project?

The New York State Department of Transportation (NYSDOT), in cooperation with the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA), is advancing Central New York Forward, a transportation project in the Towns of Cicero and Clay, New York. The project will evaluate ways to make travel safer, more efficient, and more accessible for drivers, pedestrians, bicyclists, and transit users along key regional roadways.

Project Description

The purpose of the project is to address existing and reasonably foreseeable transportation needs, including multimodal, within the project limits on NYS Route 31, on U.S. Route 11, and at the interchanges of NYS Route 31 with NYS Route 481 and Interstate 81.

The objectives of the project are:

- Improve traffic operations and safety to accommodate and address potential traffic growth associated with planned economic development/land use changes;
- Reduce commercial truck traffic on local residential streets and improve accommodations for truck traffic on the state highway system within the project limits;
- Improve multimodal transportation features for public transit users, pedestrians, and bicyclists within the project limits; and
- Address the aging bridge infrastructure within the project limits.

What is an Environmental Impact Statement (EIS)?

An EIS is a document that describes the social, economic, and environmental effects of a project, including ways to mitigate adverse effects. The preparation of an EIS includes data collection and analysis. It also includes agency and public involvement. The FHWA and NYSDOT will use the EIS to make an informed decision about the project, in consideration of public and agency input.
